Introduction

I wanted to do a book of bead weaving necklace patterns that can be worn every day with a pair of jeans or for an evening out. Were the patterns could be followed by the beginner or by the more experienced. Going page by page and with easy to follow full color illustrations, it's as if you were working with a teacher.

You will be learning the bead weaving technique and making yourself necklaces at the same time. I truly feel there is something in this book for everyone to enjoy. I hope you enjoy making these necklaces as much as I have and that you will enjoy bead weaving for many years to come.

Thanks,

Sandy

Starting Necklace

Ready...

First what you need are a few supplies

1 Beads,

For the necklaces in this book you will need size 11/0 seed beads. I like to use the Japanese seed beads, because they are uniform in size and the holes are large and even. Wide enough to go through with thread several times. I have not put any colors that I used, so you can be creative and choose your own.

You will also need bi-cone shaped crystals or fire-polished crystals. They come in many sizes and colors. The crystals that will be used for the necklaces in this book are 3mm, 4mm & 6mm, and one of the necklaces uses 6 x 9mm. On most of the necklaces patterns either crystals can be used.

2 Thread,

Not any kind of thread, what you need is beading thread. There are many different kinds of threads and colors. What you would look for is a beading thread with a weight of D. My favorites are Nymo and C-Lon thread. This is a thread that is not too heavy and not too thin. Match the color of thread to the color of beads that are in your necklace.

3 Needles,

Beading needles, come in different lengths and sizes. With the necklaces in this book you will need sizes #12 and #13 beading needles. They come in short and long versions. I use the John James sharps. I prefer the short, but it really makes no difference if you use either one. It would be your preference.

4 Beeswax,

Beeswax is used for conditioning your thread. It can also help to keep your thread from tangling. You can get it from any beading store and also from any fabric store. The fabric stores usually sell beeswax in a round plastic container.

5 Scissors,

You will need a small, very sharp scissors. Invest in a good one, it is worth it.

6 Clear Nail Polish,

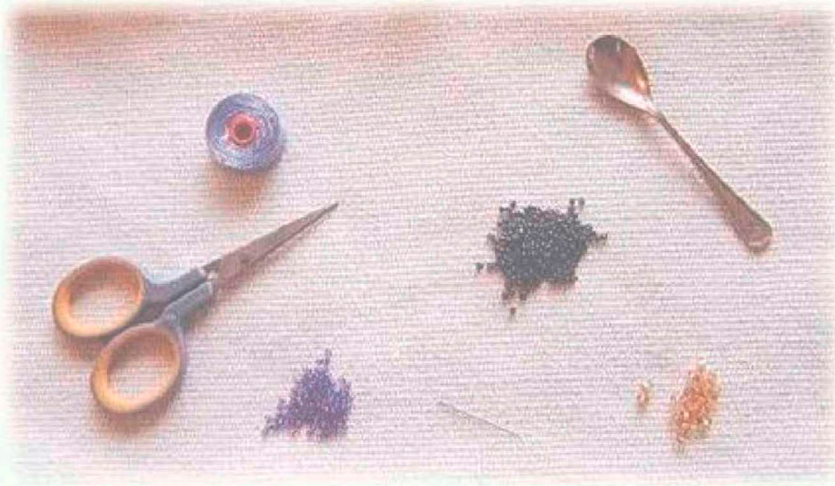
No we are not going to do our nails. Nail polish is used for holding your knots and your thread in place. Only use fresh clear polish.

Portable Work Area,

This hint is not a necessity, but this is how I move around the house with the necklace I am working on.

I first start with a lap desk. This is a flat board, about 12" x 10", attached to a pillow. Cut a piece of no-slip vinyl shelf liner to fit (this keeps the tray in place, even if you have to get up really fast) and put that on the lap desk. Then a tray, you do not want the tray to have edges that are too high, otherwise it will bother your arm if you are working on your lap.

Then put another piece of shelf liner and finally a place matt. I use a tightly woven place matt, so the beads don't get lost in the texture of the fabric. It also keeps the beads from bouncing at you when you are working. If I am working at a table, I just use the tray part, if I am working on my lap, I use the whole set up.



This is how I lay out my work surface. I bring the needle to the beads on the tray when picking up, not the beads to the needle. The little silver spoon I use for scooping up beads to put them away.

Set...

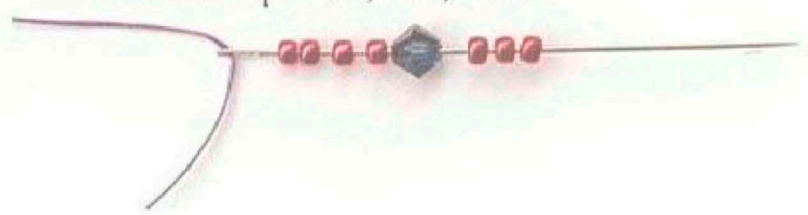
Now you need to know what I mean,

Terminology,

These are the terms that are used in the book.

The box on each pattern tells you the type of beads that are used for the pattern.

A = 11/0 seed beads
B = 4mm bi-cone crystals

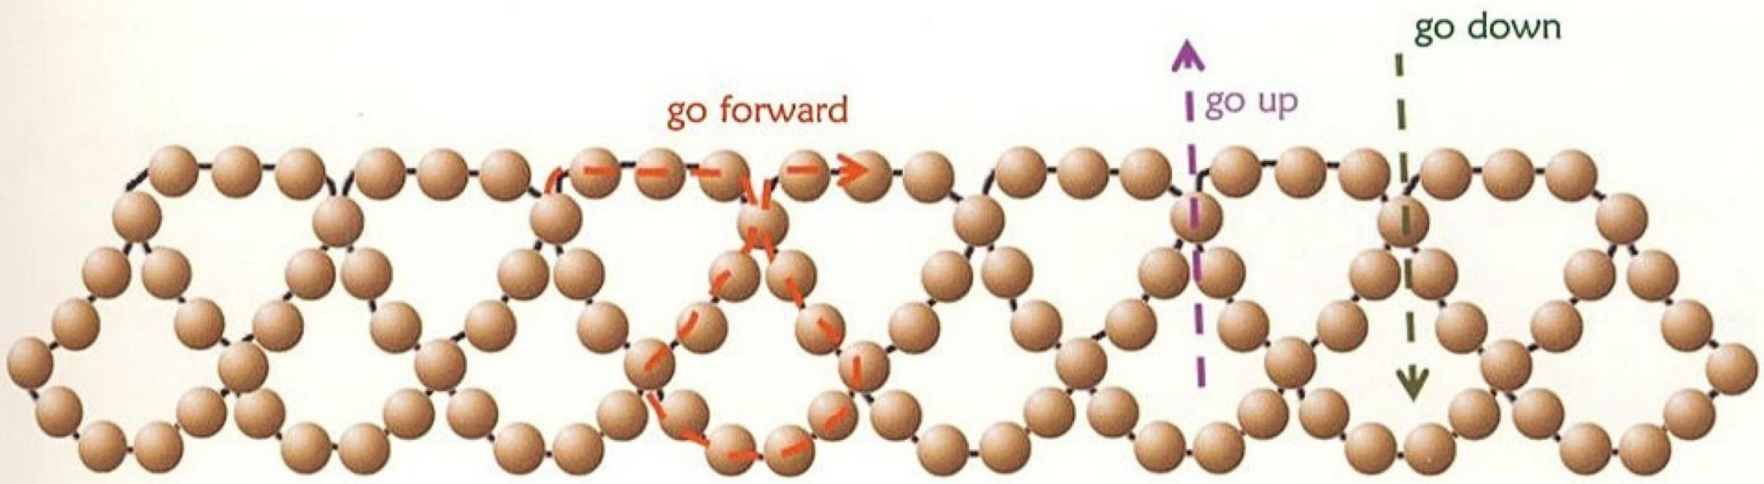


Pick up,

Pick up is the amount and type of beads that you pick up on your working needle and thread. The picture above shows, Pick up 4A, 1B, 3A

Go with thread

Go with thread refers to your working thread and needle.



go forward,
go up,
go down

Go forward, is to go with your working thread and needle in the same direction as all the steps have gone. Up and down are simply up or down.

Let's Go...

To Start,

1 Cut about 1 yard of thread, when you get more experienced, you can start with a longer thread. When you cut the thread, cut it on an angle, this makes it easier to thread into the needle.

2 Run the thread through the beeswax a couple of times. Then run the thread through your fingers and stretch the thread as you are rubbing off the excess wax. DO NOT skip the stretching of the thread part. This is a big mistake that beginners make, including myself when I began. What can happen if you don't stretch the thread, after wearing your necklace for awhile the thread will start to stretch on it's own with the weight of the beads and the tension will become too loose. As you are making your necklace keep in mind your tension. You don't want the tension too tight, but you also don't want to see the thread. If this is your first attempt at bead weaving, start at the easiest necklace. If you have to pull it apart and start again, it's an easy necklace to learn your tension on. Thread is inexpensive and the beads are all reusable.

3 Thread your beading needle. Hint: Pinch the thread between you thumb and finger, then bring the thread to the needle hole. Beading needle holes are very small, so it takes a bit of patience when you first start to thread them.

4 Now you need to add a stopper bead to the end of the working thread. I use an over hand knot, so the bead will hold, but will also slide off easily. This bead can be a different color so that you can remember that it is not part of the necklace. The stopper bead is used to hold your beads on when you are starting a necklace and keeps your tension.

Pick up the stopper bead, slide it down to the end of your working thread, leaving at least an 8" tail (this thread tail will be used later to add your clasp). With the thread, make a loop over your stopper bead bringing the left end thread over and through the back of the right hand thread. Pull up ends so the thread is snug around the stopper bead.

When the necklace is complete, you can pull off the stopper bead by putting the blunt end of your needle through the bead and pull it off by sliding down the thread tail.

Bringing in new thread,
and ending the old thread

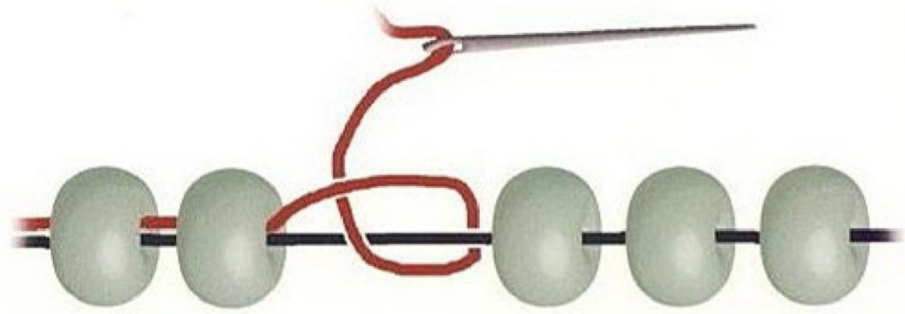
When you start to run out of thread or if you see that your working thread is starting to fray, it is time to bring a new thread in and end the old thread.

The red line in drawing represents the finished working thread. Go with thread back though several beads in the necklace. Make a half hitch knot. Weave again with your working thread through several more beads in the necklace, make another half hitch knot, but before pulling up the thread to tighten the knot, put a bit of the clear nail polish on the knot area and about 1/4" along the thread. Pull up the knot tight and continue with the working thread through several more beads in the necklace. Trim off the thread as close as possible to the beads in the necklace.

Please note: If the necklace has more than one row, you can weave the working thread through the necklace beads and leave it without putting in the knot until the next row is complete. If you make a knot, and you need to go through the bead where the knot is, the bead hole will be blocked. You can go back later to do the knotting. You never want to force the needle though beads, the beads are made of glass and can be broken.

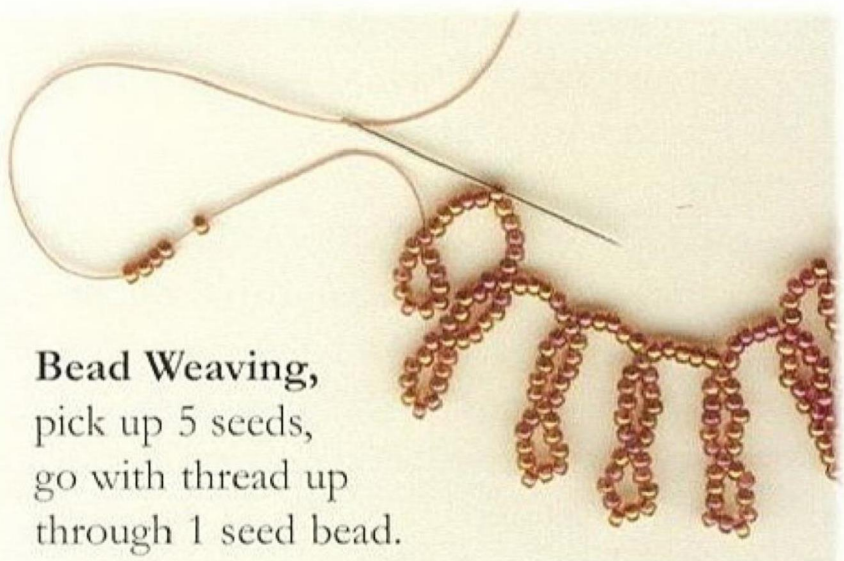
The blue line in drawing represents bringing in a new thread with a stopper bead. The stopper bead can be removed after several steps have been completed in the necklace pattern. (Fig. 1) Pull off the stopper bead and weave off the end of the new thread in the opposite direction of the old thread. (Fig. 2)

The Half Hitch Knot



To make a half hitch knot, go around the thread in the necklace with your working thread and needle between 2 beads. Make a loop and go through the loop in the working thread, pull up to tighten.

Please note: When weaving your threads through areas in the necklace that already have been done, try not to split the threads with your working needle, it can weaken the strength of your threads.



Bead Weaving,
pick up 5 seeds,
go with thread up
through 1 seed bead.

Adding Clasps...

There are many kind of clasp available, from very expensive to very cheap. Always try to match your clasp to your necklace. Don't use a cheap clasp for a necklace that has taken you many hours to complete and has expensive beads in it.

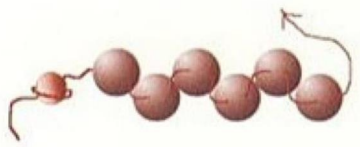
To add a clasp, with the working thread from the necklace. pick up 4 seed beads (or as many or as few as you would like), clasp (I put my clasps on a jump ring first), 4 seed beads, go with thread through 2 or 3 beads in necklace. Continue with your working thread around through all the clasp beads several times. You want to fill the beads with thread for strength. Continue with thread into the necklace and end the thread.

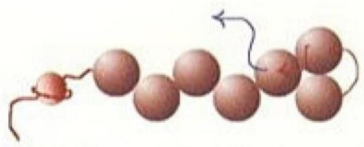
Repeat in the same manner at the other end after removing the stopper bead. Use the stopper bead tail thread to add the other end of the clasp.

My Favorite Clasp...

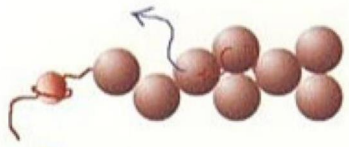
The toggle and loop closure



1 To make the toggle, Start a new thread, add a stopper bead, leaving a 10" tail.
Rows 1 & 2, Pick up 6 seed beads and slide them up next to the stopper bead.



2 Row 3, Pick up 1 seed bead, skip over the 1st seed bead in row 2, go with thread, right to left through the next seed bead, pull up thread, so the beads are stacked on top of each other as shown in drawing.



3 Pick up 1 seed bead, skip over 1 seed bead in row 2, go with thread, right to left through the next seed bead, pull up thread.

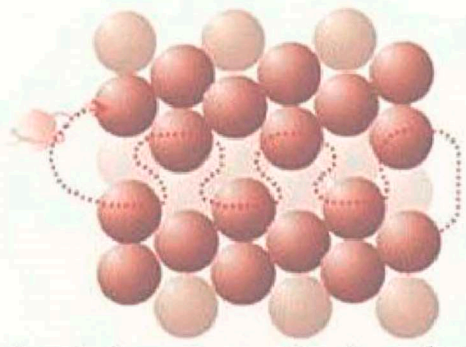
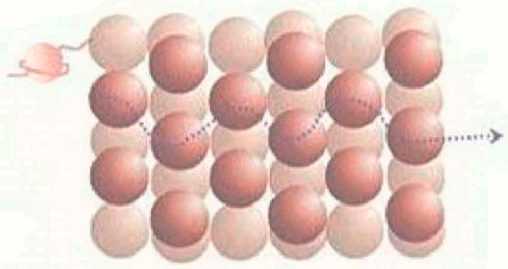
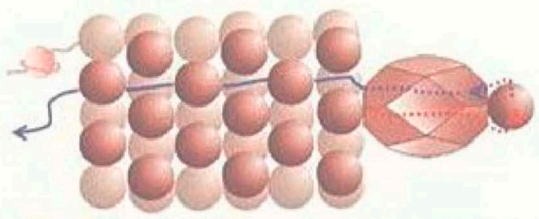
7 Rows 6, 7, 8, 9 & 10, repeat steps 5 or 6 to make 5 more rows.



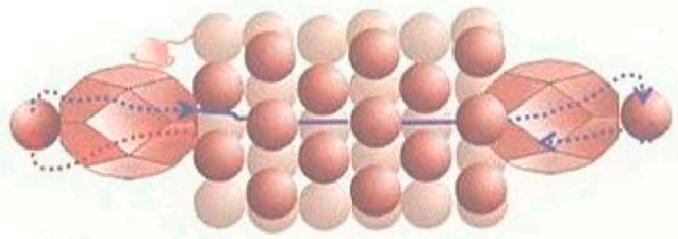
8 Roll the small piece into a tube. With the working thread, sew across from the 10th row into the 1st row, going back and forth between the beads like a zipper.



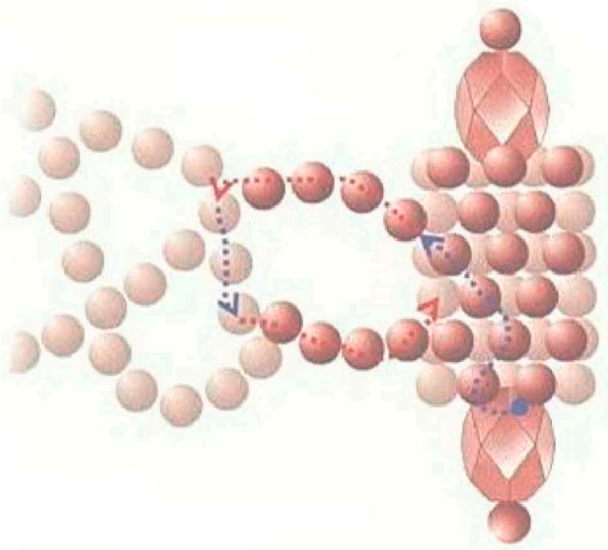
9 With the working thread weave through the beads in the tube, so your thread can come out the other end.



10 Pick up 1 crystal (to match necklace) and 1 seed bead, go with thread back down through the crystal and the center of the tube.



11 Pick up 1 crystal and 1 seed bead, go with thread back down through the crystal and the center of the tube. Continue with thread as many times going through the beads added in step #10 and #11 and the center of the tube. When you can't go through the beads any more, Continue with thread into the beads in the tube and end the thread. Toggle made.



12 Remove the stopper bead in the toggle, put the end thread on your needle and go with thread down through 4 tube beads. Pick up 4 beads go with thread into the end beads in the necklace. You can go through as many or as few beads in the necklace. I usually go through at least 3 beads. If there is a crystal at the end, go through the crystal and 1 or 2 seed beads.
Pick up 4 beads, go with thread through 2 seed beads in the middle of the toggle. continue with thread around through all these beads as many times as you can. When done, weave thread into the necklace and end.

13 To make the loop, remove the stopper bead on the necklace, put the end thread on your needle. Pick up 8 seed beads and go with thread through 3 seed beads in the necklace. Continue with thread around through the 1st through 5th seed beads just added. Pick up 20 - 23 seed beads (make a loop with the beads to see if they fit over the toggle), go with thread down through the 4th & 5th seed beads in the previous loop you just made. Check again to make sure the loop fits over the toggle. Continue with thread through all the loop beads as many times as you can. When done, weave thread into the necklace and end.

Go...

time to start the necklaces!
